Another Radical Manifesto --Speech of Wendell Phillips.

We publish this morning the speech of Wendell Phillips, delivered on the 4th inst., before an anti-slavery society in Massachusetts. We publish it to show exactly what is now unconstitutionally and arbitrarily withheld, unless on the degrading condition of inferiority in the Union, and of negro political and civil equality enforced by the Federal Government.

He Radicals are aiming at, and what they mean to do if they can secure the entire control of the Government. And Phillips is the Government. And Phillips is the pioneer of his party. The positions he assumes are finally occupied by his party. His main points are three, viz:

That is the real Radical programme; and after the fall elections, if they are not too adverse, will be openly advocated by the whole Radical party.

There is a marked inconsistency in the speech. He advises the Radicals to do the very thing he blames Sumner, Stevens and Kelly for doing. They are blamed by Phillips for voting for the proposed Constitutional amendments instead of voting "no" manfully. Their ex-cuse was: they could do no better. support the Republican party because they can do no better. It will be seen that some of Mr. Phillips' colleagues don't think so, and took occasion to say so. This speech of Mr. Phillips will well re-

People had tried to create the impression that Napoleon was going to take a position which would act as a sort of a dead weight on the present efforts of Italy, and the surprise and delight were therefore all the greater. At Milan no such madness of enthusiasm had been seen since the day the Emperor and Victor Emanuel entered the town after the battle of Magenta. People embraced in the streets, threw up their hats, and even had fainting fits of joy. For any one who has seen the Italians in their moments of joy, their present outbursting of patriotism for the war can well be imagined.

What does all that mean? To us, who have been watching the utterances of the pulpit and ot anniversary negro celebrations, the answer is easy. Another civil war is the meaning, and which civil adeance. war will spring from a war of races.

Peace has dried up this river, and the commercial distress and bank ruptcy are unparalleled. There is also a grievous famine in Bengal, accompanied with great suffering.

How. B. Rhett, a well known politician of South Carolina, and a distinguished member of Congress, was shot on the 4th of July, while going to his plantation at Charles ton. He was killed by a discharge from a double-barreled shot-gun.

It is supposed the murderer was a negro, who had made threats against his family.

MAST DEMOCRATE.

Another Governor in Trouble. The Madison (Wisconsin) Journal (Rep.) has a cock and bull story about a recent attempt to assassi-nate Governor Fairchild of that State. It is reported that he was attacked while walking in the back-yard of his grounds about midnight, and that the would-be assassin exclaimed, on making his attack:-"You d—d Yankeet" Singular that the assassin should know that the Governor would be walking in in the back-yard of his grounds about midnight; but not singular that his partisans should want to make the Governor out a martyr to Southern malice. When the truth of the affair comes to be known, a woman will be found at the bottom of it. These high-moral-idea Governors are not exactly what they are cracked up to be. Brough and Morton are examples; and we are
